It is clearly a question, they point out, whether democracy is to survive or whether the iron heel of autocracy is to rule. Nor is it any new situation they present.

The submarine menace and its consequent blockade of food supplies between this country and the allied nations has to be solved or civilization will receive a serious blow, they say. If there is any one thing the missions made clear, the officials say, it is that the United States must get food to the other side or the war will be lost. This is all a matter of fact.

PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION

British Gathering for Debate of Question Proves to Be Meeting Favoring System—H. G. Wells and Others Speak

Special to The Christian Science Monitor towards more democratic government everywhere makes the question of proportional representation more a live question than before, and the debate arranged under the auspices of the United Workers, in which Mr. Aneurin Williams, Mr. H. G. Wells, Mr. Clutton Brock and others took part, had, therefore, no such academic character as it would have had, even a few months ago. The meeting had the disadvantage that, although it was proved only a series of statements in favor of proportional representation by various speakers, whose intellect-

Mr. Williams spoke of Britain as the ancient home of representative government and described federal representation as constituting the fundamental difference between ancient and modern countries. When countries were on a smaller scale and the people could meet in the market place to discuss their affairs, there was democratic government. When the countries became too large for this they slipped into autocracy and this Problem to Be Discussed had gradually in the course of history, Mr. Williams showed, become modified by the idea of representation. PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Members of having, as nearly as possible, every-Proportional representation aimed at necessarily represent even a majority of his constituents. He might only have secured the biggest poll out of in 1886 there was a majority of votes but the Parliament elected had a majority of members against Home Rule. In 1906 the Unionist party in the Commons was practically wiped voted Unionist. Thus the result of a general election now was vitiated in two ways. Under proportional reprecertainly nine-tenths would be represented and electors in any constituency would be able to say I gave him so and so my first, second, or third choice. Mr. Williams said it would be a rare thing under proportional representation, for a candidate to be elected to any great extent by the assistance of anything lower than counting of the votes was supposed to have an appearance of difficulty. The opposition to proportional representation on this ground was due to want of confidence in the arithmetical ability of the country. There was a conviction that vulgar fractions were really not studied. Mr. Wells expressed greater confidence in his country's arithmetical powers, and maintained that the only valid case against proportional representation depended on one's answer to the question, "Do you believe in party government or not?" If you do, he said, LONDON, England-The tendency you have a case against proportional representation which will prevent sweeping majorities and occasionally put in power weak governments. Mr Wells was, however, convinced that the majority of people in this country were looking for something a little better than party. To judge by the applause, the meeting agreed with Mr. Wells on this point. The virtue of it saved electors from the party hack, who got in solely because they did not want some other party hack. Mr. Wells said he had never been able exsupposed to be a debate, it eventually cept once to vote for any candidate. That once was when he voted for Sir Michael Foster for London University. Otherwise he had always voted against some candidate. It was a very rare thing to have a constituency really represented in Parliament.

Proportional representation enabled a constituency to choose between the party hack and the representative man. It would give them a legislature of representative men. This brought he contended that the crank had more influence now, when he could perhaps offer his solid two or three hundred votes to the weaker side in closely contested constituencies. Finally Mr. Wells agreed that while proportional representation would be an immense step forward, those with a wider outlook would see that it could not alferent ways by different countries, was too large for reasonable discuspolicy in view of the unwieldiness of Parliament rested with the Cabinet, might dislike they had to turn out several other ministers whom perhaps they liked. With proportional representation they could have a Cabinet with each member responsible to the House of Commons.

In a speech in which some of the parallels were curiously out of date for so brilliant a writer and speaker. Mr. Clutton Brock said that he had been drawn to proportional representation by the arguments against it. Party officials opposed it because they said it would strengthen the party machine, but he was quite sure no party official would oppose anything which would strengthen the party machine in which they believe. He referred to the view of a Unionist agent who held that the demand for proportional representation was based on the belief that the vote was the expression of the reasoned will of the voter, that habit, loyalty, emotion and so forth, really determined how the vote would be cast; in a word that an electoral result "was an accident" and the accident being dangerous.'

MELBOURNE, Vic.-The Federal Treasurer, the Right Hon. Sir John Forrest, in introducing the Supply to the surprise of members reviewed the Federal financial outlook, which does not show an altogether satisfactory state of affairs. He said the proportional representation was that outstanding features of the 1916-17 estimates were the great increases in revenue and the greater increase in expenditure. The estimated revenue for that period was £33,909,290, less £1,000,000 estimated revenue from detained enemy vessels. The actual revenue in 1915-16 was £30.116,007. The expenditure out of revenue not included in the war expenditure for 1915-16 was £23,984,368, and the estimate for 1916-17 was £28,639,455, or the very startling increase of £4,655,-

In Appeal to Creanized Labor He Points to Patriotism of All to Aid in the War for the Support of Liberty

Special to The Christian Science Monitor from its Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, D. C. - President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor has issued the following appeal to organized labor in behalf of the Liberty Loan

"Liberty Loan week has been designated, and June 6 of that week has been set aside as Labor Liberty Loan

"The Congress of the United States has pledged the resources of the Nation for the conduct of the war into which our Republic has entered in support of liberty, democracy, and human rights. The men and women of the United States are given opportunity to participate in the loan for this purpose.

"To buy a Liberty bond is to support our country and to subscribe to ideals which our Republic is forced to maintain by military force. Individuals and organizations have testified to their patriotic desires by subscribing for these bonds, including labor men and labor organizations.

"The investment, viewed from a financial standpoint, is especially safe, being in reality a mortgage upon the resources of the Government and the Nation.

"Every worker and every labor organization will find it advantageous to support this Liberty Loan as extensively as lies within their financial ability. Money from the sale of these bonds is indispensable to the successful conduct of the war. Bond subsariptions, therefore, become a highly patriotic and intelligent way to render service to our Republic and to the cause of democracy internationally.

'The executive council has authorized the investment of $10,000 of American Federation of Labor funds in Liberty Loan bonds. All organized labor is urged to do its part."

Former Minister of Education Discusses the Effect of Industrial Legislation on Labor and Trade Unions

LABOR PROBLEM

NEW ZEALAND'S

Special to The Christian Science Monitor AUCKLAND, New Zealand-An ineresting paper on the effect of industrial legislation on labor and tradens was read by the Hon. George Fowlds, former Minister of Education, at a conference of members of branches of the Workers' Educational Association in Auckland.

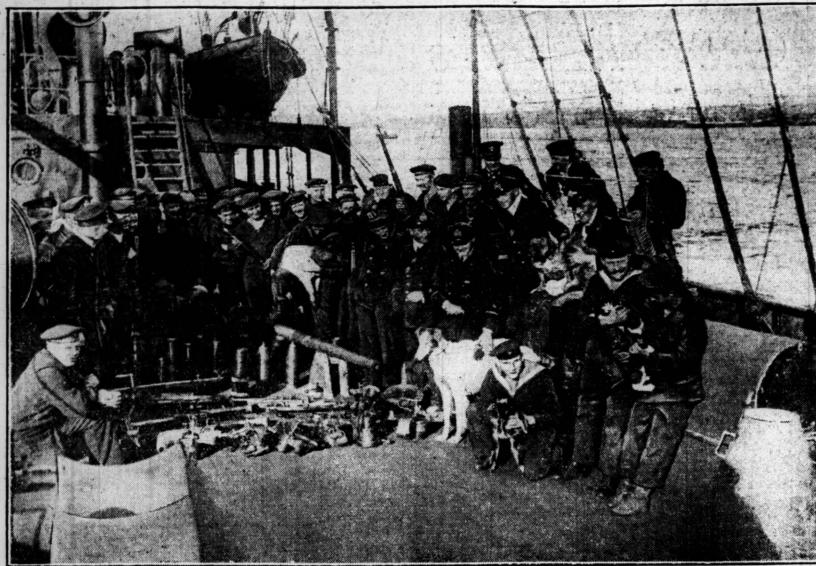

Students of industrial legislation in Australia and New Zealand, Mr. Fowlds said, regarded the year 1890 as constituting an epoch in its history. From the establishment of responsible Government in New Zealand in 1856 down to 1890, the country was ruled almost uninterruptedly by Conservaive governments. In 1890 the great naritime strike broke out in Australia and spread rapidly to New Zealand. The defeat of the strikers on that occasion brought them to realize that direct action had failed and that ne rights of labor would have to be ought out in the political as well as n the industrial field. The effects of the strike, Mr. Fowlds said, were apparent in the general election which took place at the close of the year when a radical party was returned to power under the leadership of Mr. Ballance. The election also produced small vigorous party of labor memhers which allied itself with the Liberal Party, and for the 10 succeeding years organized labor was a dominant actor in the Government of New cealand, practically all the claims of the labor leaders being embodied in acts of Parliament. Under Mr. Ballance, reform had been carried out on conomic and industrial lines, but subequently the economic part of the ogram dropped out, and, largely owng to the influence of the Hon. W. ember Reeves, the force of the party was concentrated on industrial legislaion. After Mr. Reeves returned to Great Britain a similar policy was for many years carried out by Mr. Seddon.

apex of the Liberal Party's eforts for economic reform, Mr. Fowlds said, was reached in the repeal of the property tax and the substitution for of the land and income tax in 1891, and the passing of the Rating on Unimproved Values Act in 1896. By 1906, however, it was evident that on the whole the experimental egislation had had disappointing reults, and labor opinion once more wung round in favor of direct acion by means of the strike. The idea rew rapidly and was partly responsi-ole for the defeat of the Liberal Party

In the closing years of the Nine-enth Century, Mr. Fowlds pointed ut, the majority of New Zealand vorkers placed a higher value on such ustrial measures as the Industrial ation and Arbitration Act and Workers' Compensation for Accilents Act than on any measure of nic reform, and in the early eties the former act was generally egarded as the Magna Charta of to the workers in manufactories and t might fairly be stated that the act ad failed to justify the hopes of labor. Royalists in Straits as to How to Strengthen Present Regime -Allies May Adopt Firmer Attitude Toward Greece

By The Christian Science Monitor special Balkan correspondent lately in Athens

LONDON, England-With a state of comparative quiescence pervading the Macedonian front, Balkan news continues to center around the situation in Greece and the position of King Constantine. I have already made it clear in previous correspondence to The Christian Science Monitor that Constantine's tenure of the throne of Hellas will necessarily be brought to a termination if not from without, then from within, and the only questions to be answered in the matter are those of how, and when, and the nature of the substitute which will be provided.

According to the latest information available, the Royalists in Athens are already at their wits end for measures with which to bolster up the existing régime. As already pointe l out, opinion 'n the country is beginning to realize the manner in which the national interests have been jeopardized, the Reservists Leagues are once more getting out of hand, and the very factors which were at the root of the last ultimatum presented by the Allies are again demonstrating marked activity. Action, if it comes in the near future, will be initiated by the protecting powers of Britain, France and Russia.

In discussing the Greek question of today it is necessary to rid oneself of sympathy with either of the two great groups of combatants. The whole point is that while half of Hellas has openly sided with the Allies, and while at least half the remainder FOR ARGENTINA would act in similar fashion if it dared, the Royalist clique, although protesting their neutrality, have incessantly striven to aid and abet Gertunities for Development of in the rear of the Salonika expedition that the Allies decided to force Profitable Textile Trade - the Royalists to respect the letter of Encourage Agave Cultivation their neutrality, and it is precisely because the, have not yet completely mended their ways that further dras-fallen upon Constantine's head, it is simply because of the importance of maintaining unanimity among the Allies. One of their number considers that its interests will not be served by a Greece united under the political leadership of M. Venizelos. In diplomatic circles, however, there are whispers that this attitude has recently been undergoing a change, and that the opinions which have for some time obtained in Paris, and, to a lesser degree, in London, will shortly be translated into practice. This solution is more probable than the reported decision of Constantine to abdicate voluntarily. The principal trait of the King of the Hellenes has throughout been that of obstinacy, and he may be relied upon to cling to his throne as long as his presence is tolerated by the Allies and, or, his own people. Brig.-Gen. E. Leroy Sweetser Decides to Use Massachusetts Officers to Get Regiments in Trim for Mobilization

Brig.-Gen. E. Leroy Sweetser, M. N. G., acting Adjutant-General, is arranging to have the Massachusetts Naional Guard regiments not now in the Federal service, trained by State officers. He reached this decision as a result of the inability to obtain from Secretary of War Baker promise that the State troops would be mobilized and taken into the Federal service prior to July 25, all instruction officers of the regular Army being fully occupled in other activities up to that date.

Brigadier-General Sweetser wished to have the recruits of the regiments in good form by the mobilization date, and also to put the experienced guardsmen through a preliminary practise our of duty, that all the units may be in as good shape as possible to be taken in hand by the Army officers on the day of mobilization. A drill amp has been selected for the Secand Regiment recruits near Springfield. There they will be put through six weeks of intensive preliminary training, like the new men of the Ninth at Framingham and of the Sixth at Concord. Brigadier-General Sweetser says

DELEGATES TO SELECT LEADER

John L. Bates and Sherman L. Whipple Possibilities for Presidency of Massachusetts Constitutional Convention

Former Gev. John L. Bates is regarded in political circles as the probable choice of a majority of the delegates for president of the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention, which convenes at the State House Wednesday, June 6. So likely does the election of Mr. Bates, who was on the antiinitiative and referendum "slate," appear, that leaders of the initiative and referendum movement are counseling against efforts to unite the initiative and referendum delegates on a particular opposition candidate, believing that 'the contest might then be regarded as a test of the respective strengths of the initiative and referendum movement at the start. However, many of the delegates who favor the initiative and referendum intend to support Sherman L. Whipple, one of the initiative and referendum "slate," and they hope to see him elected, even though no organized effort, it is claimed, is being made in

The experience of former Governor Bates as chief executive of the Commonwealth and earlier as Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, is apparently counting in his behalf in the discussions among the delegates regarding the election of a presiding officer. State ownership of various public utilities, extension of educational opportunities, abolition of poll taxes and a reorganization of the judiciary system of the State.

These and other propositions have already been recommended to the Special Commission on the Constitutional Convention which is charged with preparing necessary and helpful data in advance of the assembling of the convention.

The convention has been authorized to decide for itself whether to submit to the people specific amendments to the Constitution or a revised Constitution en bloc. The convention could, if it chose, make no recommendations of changes. But whatever changes are favored by a majority of the convention must be submitted to the people for approval or rejection, and only in the event of ratification by the people "in the manner directed by the convention" will they become a part of the Constitution. It is probable that the convention will provide that a majority vote of those voting on a proposed article shall suffice for ratification.

BLACK SAFETY TREAD TIRES

VOLUTION climbs on the experience of the past. Only THE STRONG, THE BEST, survive the TEST. Especially is this true of tires.

Goodrich Black Safety Treads are the FIT fabric tires that have survived the relentless TEST of the Goodrich Test Car Fleet.

To produce them hundreds of tires have been worn threadbare over millions of miles of the worst roads of America.

GOODRICH NEVER SELLS YOU AN EXPERIMENT. Be it a Goodrich rubber mat, a garden hose, or a Goodrich tire, it must prove itself by wear and tear test worthy of the Goodrich name. A severe test of tires—that test of Goodrich's Test Car Fleets.

Tested The Country Over

Six corps of heavy cars, light cars, hard running cars—take Goodrich Tires and maul their MERIT against teeth of sand, rock, and gravel. Two sets of drivers, speeding them sixteen hours a day, hammer them week after week on the anvil of the road.

Wherever climate and roads can test and tell something about tires, a Goodrich Test Car Fleet is grinding the TRUTH out of Goodrich tires.

While the Atlantic Fleet crunches through the hills and valleys of New York and New England, the Pacific Fleet hammers the granite highways of the Western coast.

While the Dixie Fleet braves the sun of the South, the Lake Fleet ploughs the sand stretches of Minnesota.

While the Prairie Fleet scouts the roads around Kansas City, the Mountain Fleet battles the rocky trails of Yellowstone and Glacier Parks.

Throughout miles of roughing it, which run into millions, over roads which cross-hatch the map of the United States, Goodrich learns the TESTED VIRTUES of its tires.

Thus it settles the durability and resilience of the UNIT MOLDED TIRE—the unbroken curing Goodrich has always maintained was the BEST construction for fabric tires. Thus it settles the wearing strength of Black Tread, the toughest rubber known.

ALL THIS IS THE BEST IN TIRES BECAUSE IT HAS SURVIVED THE TEST.

Ford Car Tires of Heroic Size GOODRICH "Three-Seventy-Five"

The tire sensation of 1917, made exclusively by Goodrich, designed expressly for Ford Cars, is a burly tire, 31 x 33/4 inches, built in Safety Tread only, to fit 30-inch rims. Its extra rubber and fabric means less stress and strain on the tire and your car, hence ECONOMY, in longer-lived tires and longer-lived cars.

"From the early days of the war, the Socialist Party has, in actual prac-tice, been committed to a program essentially unneutral, un-American, and pro-German. Knowing well that every sincere pacifies who criticizes or opposes the war is bound to be dubbed "pro-German," and perhaps subject to real persecution, I have hesitated to use that term, and hasten o add that I do not think that there has been (except in a few unfortunate instances) any conscious advo-cacy of the German cause, as such. t it is a fact that, from the first, he party as a whole has been, with notable uniformity, on the German side. Through the utterances and actions of the national executive comittee, the national committee, and mittee, the national committee, and our press, the party has been placed in the position of favoring precisely the things desired by the German Foreign Office, and of opposing the things which the German Foreign Office opposed. We have repeated all the miserable evasions and apologies of German statesmen, and been silent upon those questions on which the German interests required silence.

LEGACY TAX MUST BE PAID

The full bench of the Supreme Court decided yesterday that Mrs. Caroline Rogers Hill of Brookline must pay TO SENATOR LANE a legacy tax on $250,000 she received from her husband. Under an antenuptial agreement Mrs. Hill received $250,000, which she elected to take in securities, from the estate. Under the law, the court says, this operated as a legacy and is subject to a tax.

Root & Vandervoort Engineering Company has placed an order for nearly $500,000 worth of machine tools 30½ to equip a new plant to manufacture 81/4 three-inch guns. Many orders for shop equipment are awaiting release of Government contracts. Munition manufacturers, especially in the East are steadily placing orders for machine tools.

Proposal to place embargo on exports of tin plate temporarily has brought more urgent demand from foreign consumers who have paid as high as $13.50 per base box for 50,000 boxes for shipment over last quarter of this year, by which time it is expected proposed embargo will have been lifted. Other exporters have bid as high as $14 per base box unsuccessfully.

Export demand for steel products, especially ship plates, wire rods and High Low Last bars, continues active on Canadian and Japanese account.

CENTRAL ROAD'S NEW BOND PLANS

TRENTON, N. J .- New Jersey Public Utilities Commission has authorized New York Central Road to make two bond issues, one of $70,000,000 and one of (10,000,000. The larger is of 4 per cent consolidated mortgage gold bonds to retire a similar amount of old bonds of New York Central & Hudson River. The smaller is of 41/2 per cent refunding and improvement mortgage bonds.

The larger issue consists of bonds given in exchange for approximately $70,000,000 old Lake Shore collateral 3½ per cent bonds, bonds of a higher Bid Asked rate having been given as a considera-3% tion for consent of the bondholders to consolidation of Lake Shore with . former New York Central in Decem-

New Jersey commission acquires jurisdiction by reason of lease of West Shore to the Central and ownership of certain terminals on Jersey shore.

MARKET OPINIONS WESTERN BANK REVIEWS TRADE

and Various Complications Resulting Therefrom, but Signs of Hesitation Are Seen

CHICAGO, Ill.—In its monthly review of business and financial conditions the National City Bank of Chicago says among other things:

the war and the serious complications that have resulted from it. Of late. however, there have been signs of hesitation which are not unnatural, in view of the new taxation, the large Government borrowings and the uncertainty as to what our participation in the war will mean. The excitement over the food supply question and the possibility of actual famine conditions prevailing later on have caused uneasiness in some quarters. The agitation has excited the grain markets and led, in some cases, to actual hoarding of food supplies. has, however, been a direct factor in enlarging the planted area, giving fresh impetus to the plant-a-garden movement and causing every one to make better use of foodstuffs. Speculation in grain has been curtailed by the authorities, so the situation is utterly abnormal, as a free market no longer exists. The price of cattle, hogs, sheep and lambs has recently touched a new high level. The cost of living was probably never so high as High wages and steady work for very one capable of earning an honest dollar are factors accounting for the great spending power of this community. Retail sales in dry-goods show up larger than last year, but the advance buying has been more stocked up with high priced merchandise are no longer anticipating the demands of their customers in the way that they did a few months ago. The great industries are, however, booked well ahead and the demand for ship plates has made it very difficult for steel manufacturers to fill their requirements in other directions. All branches of the industry appear to be assured of excellent earnings for some time to come. The demand seems to keep up, notwithstanding a steady advance in prices, and it looks as if middle western plants would have all the work that they can handle for the next 12 months. The demand for groceries and foodstuffs seems insatiable. It is evident that the purchase of supplies for army and navy use has been a factor in maintaining prices at a high level. This is natural under the circumstances, in view of the world-wide shortage of foodstuffs and the necessarily large consumption by men in the trenches.

There has been some improvement of late in crop conditions, prospects for winter wheat in Kansas and Texas appearing better than ago. The corn acreage is likely to show a large increase over last year, although more or less replanting will be necessary in certain sections. In Kansas the increase in corn acreage is reported to be at least 40 per cent Advices from the Northwest show that a record acreage in spring wheat is possible, as crop conditions are exdeclared usual quarterly dividend of put forth to increase the area of spring wheat, so as to make up, if possible, for the expected shortage in winter wheat. The outlook for oats is highly reassuring, especially in this State, where a good increase in planted area will be shown. It is probable that the nation-wide movement to increase the production of vegetables will be attended with noteworthy results, since many thousand acres of what was virtually waste land have been planted this year to good advantage. All this increased yield will be needed, as the indications favor a striking decline in production abroad which means that the United States, to a greater extent than ever before, will have to exert itself, in order to keep the world properly fed. The farmer will have his hands full this year, as there is every incentive for him to increase production wherever it is possible for him to do so. The figures just compiled, covering the value of domestic exports of merchandise from the port of New York during April reached $262,650,051. This represented an increase, as compared with April, 1916, of $77,201,608 and is a very remarkable showing, when the menace of the submarine is taken into account. There was also a gain for the year of $11,510,698 in the value of April imports at the port done an immense amount of damage. representing as it does about the most cruel form of illegal warfare, it has in the way that its backers declared that it would.

STEEL MILLS TO EMPLOY WOMEN

SHARON, Pa .- Officials of the United States Steel Corporation and other iron and steel companies in Shenango Valley have under consideration a plan to employ girl clerks, to take places of young men who have already enlisted, or are subject to se-lective draft. Scores of young men have already joined the Army and Navy, and a great shortage of help is reported. The companies intend to train the young women to fill vacancies. There are other positions in mills that women can fill.

GREAT NORTHERN COTTON PRICES ORE' PROPERTIES' POSITION GOOD

Trustees Report Increased Prices for Output and a Betterment in the Shipping Situation

NEW YORK, N. Y .- In their remarks to holders of Great Northern Ore certificates, the trustees say: "Price at Lake Erie ports for the year was $4.20 for bessemer, and $3.55 for nonbessemer, compared with $3.45 and $2.80, respectively, in 1915 and $3.77 and $3.08 average for the five-year Trade activity continues in spite of period 1911-1915.

"Prices for 1917 will be $5.70 for bessemer and $5.05 for nonbessemer, representing an increase over 1916 of $1.50 per ton for each grade. However, advance in ore is, to a consider- last, of 21.50. able extent, offset by increased cost of production, due to labor difficulties, higher wages, higher cost of equipment and supplies and increase in cost of lake transportation. "Sales of ore have been restricted by shortage of vessel space, and to a year ago, when 77.5 per cent was remedy this situation Arthur Iron Mining Company has acquired a subcapacity of these vessels. The situation is being further improved by the policy of leasing ore reserves to consuming interests.

"Vessel rate for coming season, from ports at head of Lake Superior to lower lake ports, will be $1.10 per ton, including unloading charge of 10 cents, an advance of 50 cents per on, equal to 83 1-3 per cent over 1916 charter rates. This rate is the highest ever paid on Mesabi range shipments. We contemplate the coming year with hopefulness. Though general conditions are unsettled to a degree of disturbance, the situation is such as to indicate another year favorable the advance buying has been have as to indicate another year favorable cautious and merchants who have to business connected with the metal

CAR SHORTAGE BEING REDUCED

CHICAGO, Ill.-Western roads have to reduce car shortage and increase carrying capacity. Freight solicitors have been practically taken off regular work and set to urging consignees individually to unload cars they are the initial level. holding. Every morning these men go over reports of cars detained for NEW TREASURY unloading, and each leaves the office with a list of such cars and persons to whom consigned. By this means the supply of cars is being substantially increased.

Officers of railroads centering here meet daily to work on plans for conservation of transportation resources including discontinuance of certain trains which can be spared.

DRY GOODS OUTLOOK GOOD

CHICAGO, Ill.—Heavy rainfall this week covering a very large area has greatly improved the crop situation. AT HIGH LEVEL

Quotations Highest in Forty Years Due to Bullish Report of Government-Crop Improvement Likely

NEW YORK, N. Y .- Following the publication by the Department of Agriculture of the cotton report. placing the condition as of May 25 at 69.5 per cent, cotton futures made a sharp advance, carrying prices to the highest levels in the past 40 years. The high price reached Friday by the July option of 22.42 compares with the previous high mark established Nov. 27

An estimate of lower than 70 per cent was generally unlooked for, the trade having been inclined to accept a condition above that reported by the Government. This is a decrease of 8 per cent from the corresponding date reported. The months of March and April stantial interest in three steel steam-ships under construction, and to be delivered by Aug. 1, 1917. This will give command of approximately 332-000 tons per season of total converted. 000 tons per season of total carrying sarily follow that succeeding months will continue to grow worse. It is yet a long time before picking season. and with the aid of favorable weather there is every reason to expect a better outlook in the near future. Last year, however, cotton, after making a fairly good start at 77.5 per cent, although slightly under the 10-year average, gradually grew worse as the season progressed until the final Government report placed the condition at 56.3 per cent and a final yield of 11,511,000 bales.

In some section of the belt where the cotton has already been killed. farmers have reseeded the ground so that the final yield will be much larger than the present figures would seem to indicate.

Still higher records were established in the early dealings today on an active general demand with only a scattered supply. There was selling of hedges by the South, the advance on Friday locally having put prices where this could be done profadopted a novel and ingenious plan itably and profit-taking also was indulged in.

As soon as the early supply was absorbed, however, the demand increased and July advanced well above

Spinach Cream-This is the way they serve spinach in Paris. It is chopped fine and mixed with a cream sauce, perfectly seasoned, of course, and is a most delicious dish, not in the least resembling the same vegetable as some other peoples serve it, just as "stewed greens." And it is quite simple to make it attractive. First of all, wash the spinach very carefully in plenty of running water. Then boil it until tender, using as lit-tle water as possible. When done, drain thoroughly and put through the meat chopper or chop as fine as possible in a bowl. Turn it into a saucepan or double boiler, add a little butter—about 1 tablespoon to spinach intended to serve five or six people-1 teaspoon of salt, a little pepper and a few drops of onion juice. Mix it with just enough cream sauce to make a rather stiff, thick cream. Arrange in mounds on small rounds or squares more of the white sauce poured around the edges.

Eggs in Baskets-This is a delicious and attractive luncheon dish. Butter red tomato in each. Wash these tomatoes first, of course, but do not peel them. Cut out the stem and scoop out a large enough opening at the top to drop in one raw, unbeaten egg, being careful not to break the yolk. Sprinkle cracker crumbs over the top, also a little salt, pepper and a small piece of butter. Place the ramekins in a pan of boiling water and bake in a fairly hot oven until the tomato is tender. If the tomatoes are large, cut them in two horizontally and use half in each ramekin, for they must not be too large to bake quickly. Stuffed Tomatoes-Choose round, ripe tomatoes, wash but do not peel as much of the pulp as possible without breaking the skin. Mash the pulp camped in Grant Park, on the lake rules of that organization, and work dash of sugar. "The Leaven"

LITTLE by little the world is beginning to realize that what is called the war is nothing more or less than a colossal mental world fermentation. Years ago, in her dedicatory sermon, delivered in The Mother Church, in Boston, on the 6th of January, 1895, Mrs. Eddy summed up this very condition of things in the word "chemicalication," "This spiritual chemicalization", she then said, 'is the upheaval produced when Truth is neutralizing error and impurities are passing off." It would be difficult to sum up the political condition of the world today more clearly than in those words. For centuries humanity has been working, more or less blindly, towards a spiritual realization of the riddle of existence. It has made for itself, as it were, a vast network of paths, intersecting, running for a time parallel, and at times at every conceivable angle to those already existing, and nearly all fashioned by wayfaring men striving to reach their destination of absolute Truth without a compass. As a result of this the centuries of struggle have proved to be centuries of collision. Every conceivable human answer has been made to the riddle, with the result that those who have made the answers have often merely involved themselves in hopeless arguments, which can only be said to have been even partially harmless when they have not ultimated in actual violence.

Those, for instance, who have believed in autocracy have rallied in all cases to the support of autocracy, and out of this there have grown what might perhaps be fairly described as the dynastic wars, such as the Wars of the Roses. Those who have believed in democracy have rallied to the support of democratic ideas, and out of the collision of these ideas with the ideas of autocracy have sprung wars such as many of those which have won for the Low Countries the title of the Cockpit of Europe. Those whose mental bent has been towards religion have grouped themselves round the various sectarian banners of the world, and proceeded from argument to blows, until they have found themselves in such struggles as the Spanish Fury in The Netherlands or the wars undertaken by Ferdinand, the Catholic, to purge Spain of the Moors. The catalogue might be extended practically ndefinitely, if there were anything to be gained by it. It might be extended to cover the side issues such as he Peasants' Revolt, which grew out of the dynastic struggles of England, or of the Anabaptist outrages, which sprung from the religious struggles in The Netherlands. To attempt to deal with it would be to write the history of the world, for it would be necessary to pass to the efforts of military theocracies such as Turkey to conquer the world for Allah, or of autocratic powers like Austria to divide the carnal and spiritual empire

In the midst of this world of human passions there has been working, during all the centuries, the fermenting leaven of Principle, always insisting on its inexorable law which, because it has never been obeyed, has, apart from anything else, prevented peace from settling in the world. Gradually, very gradually, as the centuries passed, the democratic idea began slowly to sap autocratic power. But democracy has still to learn that equality of opportunity does not mean limitation of effort. that political freedom cannot be expressed in terms of the repression of the individual, and that liberty cannot be described as the substitution of the autocracy of the mass for the autocraev of a class. In such circumstances it vas inevitable that sooner or later men would learn to bring their actions into obedience to Principle, or else that the antagonistic elements of the human mind would produce a world cataclysm. The intensified fermentation in the body politic, growing out of the perpetually increasing effort of the individual to assimilate Truth, produced his cataclysm, with a suddenness nobody, from the most famous statesman to the humblest member of a political club, had ever calculated upon. So sudden and so widespread, indeed, was the outbreak that even those whose efforts, albeit unconscious, had been largely responsible for the eruption, commonly failed to appreciate their own handiwork. Like the Pharisees and Sadducees of old, hey could read the face of the heavens but they were blind to the signs of the times.

These people mistook the incoming roar of an ocean, as Mrs. Partington did, for the ripples on the face of a puddle. They imagined that they were looking on at a war of individuals, and never dreamed that the detonations were those of a war of elements. Gradually, very gradually, they have come to see that the puddle was a sea, and that the detonations were caused by the meeting of the democratic and autocratic instincts of the human mind. They have not yet, however, begun to realize that the sea is in reality the sea of Revelation, the sea out of which the dragon, the very embodiment of evil, dragged itself, whilst the detonations are the detonations of Sinai, the thunders caused by all the passions and instincts of the human mind crashing in a hopeless impact against the adamant of Principle. When the world rises to an understanding of this it will begin to understand the meaning of the modern Armageddon. It will begin to see that the struggle between autocracy and democracy is not a mere struggle between crowned heads and socialistic clubs, between the theory of the divine right of kings and of single tax, but is nothing more or less than the conflict between human will, in any of its disruptive phases, and inexorable Principle expressed in the unity of good.

To view the present war, then, as the breakdown of civilization, as the failure of those understanding something of Principle to dominate the situation, is a mistake. "God," writes Cowper, "moves in a mysterious way," and it is one of the commonest mistakes of the human mind to forget this, and to imagine that because a situation does not work out in the exact way in which the individual conceives it should, that the way it does is wrong. If humanity had known enough to overcome evil entirely with good, if it had really understood scientifically how Principle takes away the sins of the world, there need have been no Armageddon of today. But humanity, whose appetites, whose ignorance, and whose sins demanded the sacrifice of Calvary has required the holocaust of today because, in the interval, it has heeded neither the warnings of the Israelitish prophet, nor obeyed the commands of the great Teacher, whose forerunner he was.

Close the Saloons on Tuesday

SEVERAL proposals, more or less meritorious, have recently been made with regard to a suitable observance, in the United States, of the day set aside for the registration of those subject, according to age requirement, to the terms of the Selective Draft Law. Estimates, varying from 12,000,000 to 15,000,000, have been made of the number of young men amenable to the act. The occasion will mark the first time in the history of the Republic when its entire eligible and available young manhood has been called to military enrollment. It will, therefore, be an event of extraordinary interest, and one calculated to leave an indelible impress upon the consciousness of the Nation. For one reason and another, the different plans submitted for, an observance have failed to meet with public acceptance. As matters stand now, no set program, and nothing bordering upon ceremony or celebration, beyond such arrangements as individual communities shall make for facilitating the registration, is in contemplation.

By way of giving emphasis to a widespread sentiment. however, and as a token of respect for the day, there is one thing that should be done, throughout the length and breadth of the country, wherever State, or county, or municipal prohibition does not already exist: the saloons should be closed. It is regrettable that the day has not been anticipated by the passage and approval of a Federal law prescribing wartime prohibition as a measure of public safety. Were such a statute enacted, it would be most appropriate for it to have gone into effect on June 5, 1917. But since this very requisite war measure has been neglected, something in mitigation of the oversight may be accomplished, if drinking places everywhere shall, by the proper authorities, be ordered to be closed next Tuesday.

The liquor interests are alert for opportunities to take advantage of popular concentration of thought upon the war, and of such excitement as may be incident to the draft. They expect, no doubt, to find that questions relating to the conflict will ultimately divert public attention from the prohibition question. On the other hand, it is the hope of all right-thinking people that one of the very first fruits of the entrance of the United States into the war, so far as this Nation is directly concerned, will be the total abolition within its borders of the liquor traffic. This hope, and the aim and determination that go with it, should not be lost sight of for a moment.

Especially should they be engraved upon the thought of the young fellows who are to form the greatest military organization their country has ever known, and who are to play so large a part in the direction and destiny of the Republic when the work of that army is finished.

The Turk and the Jew in Palestine

"AFTER the Armenian the Syrian, and after the Syrian the Jew," is a rough but sufficiently accurate statement of the order in which Turkey has dealt out persecution to these three peoples during the last two and a half years. The periods have, of course, overlapped. The campaign of extermination carried out by Djemal Pasha against the Syrians was largely coincident with the outrages against Armenians, outrages which really have never ceased; whilst the present attack on the Jews of Palestine is simply an extension by Djemal Pasha of his Syrian policy.

There is something about this policy which renders it, in a supreme degree, an outrage on humanity. The latest reports from the neighborhood of Jaffa show that Jews are being driven out of Jaffa, Jerusalem, and other cities in thousands. They are not allowed to carry off any of their belongings, or to take with them even a day's supply of food, and, once thrust out, apparently the most cynically complete methods are adopted to insure that they shall be unable to obtain any kind of sustenance. Diemal Pasha, declares a recent dispatch, is too cunning to order cold-blooded massacres. His method is to reduce the population to starvation by the most elaborate system of blockade, and then to describe the condition thus brought about as a calamity sent by Providence.

The immediate reason for these new outrages is, of course, not far to seek. It is, indeed, to be found in Djemal's recent declaration that the joy of the Jews of Palestine at the approach of the British forces would be short-lived, as he would make them share the fate of the Armenians. At one time it was hoped by many people that Diemal Pasha, who, for a time, stood studiously aloof from the Armenian massacres, might be induced to break away entirely from the outrageous policy of Constantinople, and might even afford some measure of protection to such bitterly oppressed people as the Syrian Christians. With the fading away, however, of his dream of the conquest of Egypt, and with the British forces moving steadily northwards toward Jerusalem, the probabilities are that Djemal Pasha has abandoned all ideas of statesmanship, and is resorting to a policy which, in utter depravity, is only outdone by that of Enver Pasha and Talaat Pasha in regard to the Armenians. There is only one consolation in it all, namely, that every additional outrage only renders it the more certain that the end of the war will see the end of Turkish rule, not only in Europe, but in Asia.

In the Oil Trade

WHEN it is announced that the Sinclair Oil and Refining Corporation is extending its field of operations to the East, and is broadening its territory at all points, the first impression likely to be received, by the casual reader, is that perhaps this promises or threatens competition with the Standard Oil Company; but the second and all subsequent impressions would tend toward the removal of any such belief. Manifestly, the Sinclair Oil and Refining Corporation is not making its way, by either pipes or tank-cars, toward the rising sun with any intention of reducing Standard Oil dividends, regular

An atmosphere of benevolence is entirely absent from the statement of the president of the invading company with reference, for instance, to the price of gasoline. On the contrary, he echoes a regret that is shared by the Standard Oil people, namely, that the consumer is permitted to get off so easily. These are his words as they have been recorded in the press reports: "Gasoline prices are very little higher than they were one year ago. Oil prices have yet to experience the increase which has taken place in other products essential for military operations.' That is, the war, unfortunately, has not served the oil people as it has served other people, as an excuse for running up prices.

This is only one phase of the general oil lament. The Standard Oil Company expresses sorrow that the capitalization of its various subsidiaries is leading an ignorant public to think that perhaps Standard Oil earnings, gross and net, and Standard Oil dividends, regular and extra, are larger than they ought to be. A way to disabuse the popular thought of such a delusion is not to cut down the profits, but to increase the capital stock to the point where the percentage of earnings, profits, dividends, and so on, will seem small. Thus, we have this, concerning the plan for increasing capital stock, presented to us for our edification:

In line with that plan the Standard Oil of New Jersey, now capitalized at $100,000,000, would have stood a capitalization close to $300,000,000 at the close of 1915, and it is believed as a result of accumulated surplus since then this company at present could be capitalized

Where does this ability to increase capitalization come from? From the extortionate rates charged consumers, of course. Are these extortionate rates ever going to be reduced? Perhaps so, by action of the people; evidently not by competition of the Sinclair Oil and Refining Corporation, or by the competition of any other privately owned concern.

The New Orleans French Opera House

CREOLE Louisiana was wealthy, and was growing wealthier, year by year, from the '30s to the beginning of the '60s, and its busy and beautiful leading city was luxurious. New Orleans had always been more European than American; great numbers of its sons and daughters were sent annually to Paris to be educated; French fashions prevailed among its people, and in the higher social circles the French language was almost exclusively spoken. The Spanish element constituted an important factor in the life of the city, and the Spanish affiliation was with the Latin, rather than with the Anglo-Saxon, section of the population. Canal Street marked the dividing line between the two. On one side of that thoroughfare, generally speaking, were the shops and homes of the French, with a Spanish sprinkling; on the other, the shops and homes characteristic of practically all other important communities in the United States.

King Cotton was the reigning monarch of America in those days, and New Orleans was his capital. Around the crescent of the Mississippi, for miles along the levee. stretched steamboats engaged principally in the cotton and sugar trade. In 1861, when the city had attained its greatest ante-bellum prosperity, it received and handled 2,255,448 bales of cotton and 460,000 hogsheads of sugar, a tremendous business at that time. Money flowed in upon the planters of Louisiana and upon the merchants of New Orleans from all parts of the world. in exchange for these staples. Moreover, New Orleans was the entrepot of the immense traffic which, before the days of railroads, originated or found markets along to .ooo miles of navigable streams ramifying the valley of the Mississippi, from the Gulf of Mexico to the Rockies.

New Orleans, in the Creole period, affected the Parisian in other ways than in language, manners, and dress. It read French novels, sang French songs, patronized French plays, and supported seasons of French opera. It had grand opera regularly for years before any other city in the United States. The favorite singers of France, Spain, and Italy paid it regular visits in connection with their engagements in the cities of the South American circuit, which included Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, Santiago de Chile, and Lima.

In the spring of 1859 the leading Creole citizens determined to erect a structure for the housing and production of opera, and one of the most progressive and prosperous of them, Rivière Gardère, was chosen president of the French Opera House Association. The decision was made in March; in April the architectural plans of Gallier & Esterbrook were accepted, contracts were awarded and building was begun. It may serve to take some of the conceit out of New York, Chicago, and some other cities of the North, to learn that more than half a century ago, in New Orleans, work upon this structure, to cost $118,000, was carried on day and night until completed, and that the first performance was given in the house less than eight months after the architects' designs were approved.

The French Opera House was opened on December 2, 1859, and the scene at the initial performance, "William Tell" having been given the inaugural honor, was described by the Picayune, on the following day, with a large measure of justifiable civic pride.

The operas produced during this first season were "Robert le Diable," "Il Trovatore," "Les Huguenots." "Lucia," "Charles VI," and "Le Pardon de Ploermel," several of which have retained their popularity down to the present day. Notwithstanding the political excitement of the winter of 1860-61, the disturbed conditions following the election of Abraham Lincoln, and the increasing probability of a breach between the States, the second season was equally brilliant and successful. Before the third season rolled around the Civil War had the Nation in its grasp, and for five long and dreary years the French Opera House was dark. Not until the middle '70s, after the "White League" riots, did normal conditions permanently return; and since then, until two years ago, the French Opera House has been open every season, and with average success. Not always has it been given over to opera, however, in the last decade or so.

During the last few years earnest attempts have been made to restore the former prestige and popularity of the French Opera House, but without avail. Changed conditions in New Orleans have rendered such a revival impossible. The city has become, with the passing years, more American and less French. There was talk, until recently, of demolishing the French Opera House. Now, however, that the Louisiand Historical Society has taken the matter in hand, there is a fair prospect that this relic of Creole prosperity and culture will be preserved for

Notes and Comments

THOSE Canadians who have come around to the view that the selective draft is necessary feel that they need not care for the charge of inconsistency, should it be brought against them, because conditions and sentiment have recently undergone great changes. Few voices were raised in the Dominion for the draft, a year ago, and there is reason to believe that, had it been attempted as a policy then, it would have failed. Immigration authorities were requesting the newspapers to avoid mentioning it. Most of those prominent in political and business life fought shy of it. The war perspective in Canada, as in the United States, is, however, very different now, and, moreover, it is now realized, in the former as in the latter country, that the selective draft system of enlistment is both sensible and fair.

"THE beautiful weather has spurred on the nest building; the sand martins, who came late, are busy making dugouts. . I found them even burrowing between the sandstone blocks by the roadside." So, with delightful quaintness, is a war term commandeered by an English writer for the ways of peace, and thus is made to follow in the path of all war terms. Few people, now-adays, associate the word "commandeer," for instance, with the South African war, which first introduced it to the English language.

As INTERPRETED by the Standard, a publication that speaks with authority for the Baptist Church in the Northern United States, the sentiments expressed in the recent convention at Cleveland, O., a representative gathering of people of that faith, places the denomination squarely behind President Wilson in holding that the world's safety requires the overthrow of autocracy. a purpose which affords sufficient justification for the entrance of the Washington Government into the war. As in many other religious organizations, there had been among the Baptists some assertive people who believed that the church, as a church, should maintain a neutral attitude toward the conflict. These were evidently silenced, at Cleveland, by the demand of an overwhelming majority that mere expediency, where a question of right was involved, should be shown the door.

A CHARACTERISTIC story is told of General Pétain. the new Chief of the French General Staff. Hearing that a company commander in his own army was going to be court-martialed for having retreated from an advanced position which he had been instructed to defend, General Pétain, to whom the case did not seem quite clear, went himself to question the culprit. He asked for his explanation of his withdrawal, telling him to speak without any fear. The officer had not said very much before General Pétain exclaimed, "You were right; I congratulate you." And, shaking him by the hand, he turned to the officers with him and said: "What he has done I want you all to do; he has acted as an intelligent man." The presence of the French troops in the position intrusted to the company would have prevented the French artillery barrage preparatory to the next advance. Hence the officer's retreat, and hence, a few days later, his promotion by General Pétain's orders.

THE tin plate interests of the United States are entitled to the thanks of consumers, dependent on American supplies, for the decision to withhold material from packers of non-perishable commodities. Tin is an essential to the solution of the food problem. It should not be wasted, at this time, on fancy boxes, or on the packing or preservation of luxuries. On the other hand, packers of perishable foodstuffs can help along the tin economy by using glass, where it will serve as well.

A RECENT writer recalls a wise saw of the countryside in England, which, besides being appropriate to the moment, has virtues in the way of rhythm, which are often sadly lacking in such cases. The rhyme goes:

When elum-leaves are as big as a farden, When elum-leaves are as big as a tarden,
You may plant your kidney beans in the garden;
When elum-leaves are as big as a shilling,
It's time to plant kidney beans, if you're willing;
When elum-leaves are as big as a penny,
You must plant kidney beans—if you mean to have any!

Quite apart from the value of such literary bits as horticultural guides, many people are grateful for them, because trees, and such like, especially about now, are grateful things.

THE demands of the times upon all kinds of labor. in the United States, have recently been illustrated in numerous ways. It is seldom, now, that either farm or factory hands ask for a day off in order to go fishing. Observers have for some time been noticing that the attendance of sitters at the average cross-roads grocery has been steadily diminishing. And now comes the most significant and impressive news of all, in the shape of a report from the interior that whittling clubs are rapidly disbanding.
